Judith R. Harrison, Ph.D., is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Educational Psychology, Special Education at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey. Dr. Harrison earned a Ph.D. from Texas A&M University in Educational Psychology in 2009 and completed postdoctoral training as an Assistant Research Scientist at Ohio University on a multisite cross discipline study, the Center for Adolescent Research in Schools (CARS). Prior to that, she taught and counseled children with emotional and behavioral disorders (EBD) for twenty plus years in public schools. Her research interests include the effects, acceptability, and feasibility of classroom based interventions and services frequently provided to youth with EBD and/or ADHD in public school settings.
